Spooked horse causes chaos in Midtown traffic

It was chaos in Midtown Thursday afternoon when a carriage horse ran through traffic. The horse got spooked after its carriage was clipped by a van and it ran into traffic by Columbus Circle. It got unhitched from its carriage, which then tipped over, sending its passengers flying out into the street. The horse had minor scratches. ● METRO/CB

Accused Manhattan madam Anna Gristina will face trial on October 15 after a New York judge refused on Thursday to throw out the prostitution charge against her — and it appears she will stand trial alone. An icy summer experience at the High Line

In search of a novel way to beat the dog days of summer? This Friday and Saturday, cool off at 17th Street and 10th Avenue in Manhattan. There, under High Line park, Jaguar erected an ice skating rink, which will be open from noon to 8 p.m. on Friday, and from noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The event is free, and provides the public with indoor ice skating, entertainment and “cool treats,” all compliments of the luxury car company. If ice hockey is your thing, former New York Rangers players Chris and Peter Ferraro will be giving free tutorials from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday. ● METRO/MD

NYC wants to be healthier, and keep its big, sweet sodas

► Poll results show New Yorkers back Mayor Bloomberg's overall public health goals ► But they oppose his specific plans ► Majority of those polled don't like breastfeeding initiatives or the soda crackdown

Sure, New Yorkers are all for good health. Just don't ask them to quit drinking large sodas, or breastfeed more.

A Quinnipiac University poll released Thursday shows city dwellers generally approve of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's push to make New York City healthier. But they disagree with some of Bloomberg's specific proposals, such as plans to restrict the size of sugary drinks. A majority of New Yorkers also disagreed with his initiative that limits access to infant formula in an effort to encourage new moms to breastfeed.

About 54 percent of New Yorkers are against Bloomberg's plan to ban sodas larger than 16 ounces, while 42 percent think it's a good idea.

oppose Bloomberg's push to get new moms to breastfeed, with 56 percent against it. Only 24 percent of voters approve of the initiative. Women are more opposed at 60 percent, but 53 percent of men join them in the sentiment. Only 24 percent of voters agree with limiting access to formula to encourage breastfeeding.

But, ironically, New Yorkers still believe that the mayor's handling of public health is a good thing.

According to poll results, 50 percent of those asked said they approve — only 38 percent disapproved. More New Yorkers — 48 percent compared to 38 percent — don't think Bloomberg's eating and drinking initiatives are examples of “nanny government.”

Meanwhile, New Yorkers said they would approve of the mayor's rumored crackdown on alcohol abuse — 56 percent of voters think it would be a good idea and only 17 percent oppose it.

Each borough had strong support for an alcohol crackdown, except Staten Island, where support is only 40 to 35 percent.

► Joey remains critical.

$25K reward offered in case of puppy tossed out of window

The ASPCA is now offering a $25,000 reward for any information in the case of a 3-month-old pit bull puppy who was bound in a black bag and thrown out of a moving car last Saturday. The appalling case of animal abuse occurred in Brentwood, Long Island. Joey, as the pup is now called, was found malnourished and struggling to breathe. He suffered three broken neck vertebrae and is currently being treated with Valium and morphine. His recovery may take up to four months and it's too early to tell if he'll ever walk again. ● METRO/NS

Stop-and-frisk views divided on racial lines

The Quinnipiac poll also asked New Yorkers about the controversial NYPD practice of stop and frisk, which the police promised to cut down on. Overall, New Yorkers continue to oppose stop and frisk, 3 to 1. Black voters most strongly oppose at 69 percent, while white voters tend to be in favor at 57 percent. A slightly smaller majority of Hispanic voters — 53 percent — also approve of stop and frisk. Their support for the tactic was unexpected, as the Center for Constitutional Rights found that 84 percent of people stopped last year were black or Latino residents.

When courage combats illness

ALL PHOTOS BY MILES DIXON/METRO

► 150 kids and young adults with terminal illnesses take the vacation of a lifetime ► Ranging in age from 5 to 24, they board medically equipped plane for L.A.

"We have to live for today," says Laurie Goldberger, a Manhattan mother of three.

But how many of us actually heed those words? For Goldberger's eldest daughter, Perry, 22, living for today isn't just an idealistic catchphrase: It's a reality.

Perry was born with familial dysautonomia, (also known as Riley-Day syndrome), an inherited disorder that affects the development and function of nerves throughout the body. For Perry, living to see age 30 has always had about the same odds: 50/50.

But on Wednesday, Perry, and about 150 other kids and young adults like her, set out on an adventure to rise above illness. Their ages range from 5 to 24 years old.

► A volunteer greets a young woman before the trip.

According to Dr. Stuart Ditchek, medical director and co-founder of "Kids of Courage," a volunteer organization that helps sick children and their families, the best way to fight a terminal, incurable disease is simply by having fun.

"The fact is when the kids are traveling, they're happier, and that makes a difference," Ditchek told Metro. "That's why we've been fortunate enough to have so few emergencies, I'm sure of it ... the kids are just happy."

► A member of "Kids of Courage" is helped onto the United Airlines flight at Newark airport.

The aim of Ditchek's organization is to take the children on a free vacation they'll never forget, and hopefully to form long-term friendships with other kids along the way.

On Wednesday, the group — including 41 kids from the five boroughs — began their nine-day journey. Starting at Newark airport, the group chartered a United Airlines flight bound for Los Angeles.

Aboard, there was a volunteer ratio of three medical pro-

Once in L.A.

If you thought getting off the ground was a challenge, wait 'till you hear their itinerary in L.A.:

The kids will take a trip to Universal Studios, Disneyland, Venice Beach and enjoy a red carpet joyride in 20 Lamborghinis through the streets of Beverly Hills.

"I just hope there are some swimsuit models with the Lamborghinis ... that's not too much to ask for, is it?" joked Bronx native Tzvi Herzfeld, 13, who has muscular dystrophy.

fessionals/counselors to every one child. Such a ratio is not without reason, said Alderstein.

"Over 30 children are using portable oxygen on the flights; that's a world record," he explained.

The traveling expenses are massive, about $750,000, and the labor involved is daunting. All the funds are donated.

But the campers had things other than time and money on their minds: "The flight is my favorite part; we have a huge pillow fight every year!" said Levine Elyse, 16, of Far Rockaway.

► U.S. petroleum reserve

White House may release oil reserve

WASHINGTON. The White House is "dusting off old plans" for a potential release of oil reserves to dampen rising gasoline prices and prevent high energy costs from undermining the success of Iran sanctions, a source with knowledge of the situation said Thursday.

U.S. officials will monitor market conditions over the coming weeks, watching whether gasoline prices fall after the Sept. 3 Labor Day holiday, as they historically do, the source said.

It was too early to say how big a drawdown would be from the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve and, potentially, other international reserves if a decision to proceed were taken, the source said. REUTERS

Trends point to lackluster economic growth

WASHINGTON. A trend measure of Americans signing up for new jobless benefits fell close to a four-year low last week, but weakness in a regional factory gauge showed U.S. recovery still faces an uphill climb.

Other data on Thursday gave mixed signals about the strength of an incipient housing recovery, with groundbreaking on new homes falling slightly in July even as building permits rose.

Taken together, the data reinforced the view that economic growth might pick up in the second half of the year but would still be lackluster. REUTERS

Penn State to host forum on child sex abuse

GETTY IMAGES

► Penn State campus

In the wake of the child molestation scandal that rocked Penn State and its esteemed football program, the university will host a conference on child sexual abuse featuring abuse survivors Sugar Ray Leonard and Elizabeth Smart.

The two-day event in October will bring together some of the top U.S. experts on child sexual abuse, prevention and treatment to help educate the public about the problem, according to a statement from the university.

Leonard, a famed American boxer, will give a keynote speech, and kidnap survivor Smart will be the final speaker at the conference. Both suffered sexual abuse as children.

Penn State came under scrutiny after revelations that former assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky had sexually abused 10 boys over 15 years, including incidents in university locker rooms.

An independent investigation commissioned by Penn State and led by former FBI director Louis Freeh concluded that school officials were alerted about Sandusky's abuse, did nothing to stop it and decided against reporting it to authorities. REUTERS

The scandal

► "Penn State has made a commitment to becoming a leader in the research, prevention and treatment of child abuse, and this conference is an important part of that," Penn State President Rodney Erickson said in a statement.

► The conference, which is open to the public, will be held on Oct. 29 and 30 at the Penn State Conference Center Hotel on the University Park campus. Tickets can be purchased at protectchildren.psu.edu.

► Meanwhile, lawyers for two of the ex-officials cited in the Freeh report as helping to cover up early reports of Sandusky's abuse, former athletic director Tim Curley and former vice president Gary Schultz, were scheduled to appear on their behalf in a Pennsylvania court.

► Both are charged with failing to report suspected child abuse and then lying about it to a grand jury. They have pleaded not guilty.

'The Expendables 2'

Cast: Sylvester Stallone, Jason Statham, Jet Li, Jean-Claude Van Damme, Chuck Norris, Liam Hemsworth, Dolph Lundgren, Bruce Willis, Arnold Schwarzenegger
Rating: R
Grade: 00000

You can't take a film like "The Expendables 2" seriously. After all, any movie that begins with the most gratuitous body count sequence since "Team America" isn't taking itself seriously, either. Although the plot is negligible, it's certainly beside the point. Instead, Sly Stallone and company continue their winking homage to '80s action by amping up the destruction and slipping in cheesy one-liners. It's not going to win any awards, but it is stupid fun for a Friday night.

Deliciously creepy 'ParaNorman' thrills

'ParaNorman'

Director: Chris Butler, Sam Fell
Cast: Kodi Smit-McPhee, Anna Kendrick, Casey Affleck
Rating: PG
Grade: 00000

It's been a long time since a kids' movie this dark has been unleashed on our unsuspecting youth. "ParaNorman" harkens back to a time when Disney used to make creepy cartoons like "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," before it was decided that kids shouldn't be exposed to anything except talking animals and stories about ecology. It's strange and weird, and parents should understand it could induce nightmares in the really young ones, but it's very good.

The 3-D and scene composition give it the look of beautiful, old View-Master slides.

► Kodi Smit-McPhee gives voice to Norman Babcock in "ParaNorman."

The stop-motion work looks lovingly handmade, giving the whole thing an organic feel not found in slicker, computer-generated movies. As for who this movie is for, well, it's not certain. It's definitely not for little kids, but parents and children who enjoy getting mildly creeped out will find lots to like here.

Director: Salim Akil
Stars: Jordin Sparks, Whitney Houston, Mike Epps

"Sparkle" is a cliched remake of a musical about an aspiring talent (Jordin Sparks), her conservative mother (the late Whitney Houston) and her singing siblings as she becomes a rising force in the 1960s. There's little originality in this faux biography, except maybe its awareness about what it really is: a swan song for the driving force behind its getting made in the first place — Whitney Houston. STEVE GOW

Fringe benefits

More than 800 playwrights applied for this year's FringeNYC festival
But only about 200 made the cut Founder tells us why they stood out ▶ “Edward Gant’s Amazing Feats of Loneliness!” is one of the plays selected for inclusion in this year’s FringeNYC. For more information on the festival, running through Aug. 26, visit www.fringenyc.org.

Now in its 16th year, FringeNYC comprises all forms of theater for the biggest performing arts fair in North America. We spoke with co-founder Elena K. Holy to learn about the inner workings of the fest.

How do you choose which shows make the cut?

It’s about an eight-week process that involves about 100 people, and we look for innovation, vibrancy and diversity. The excruciating part is having to make what can feel like sort of random choices, because a lot of really wonderful and worthy works get declined. But sometimes a show will get declined because they don’t need the opportunity that FringeNYC presents.

Are there any shows you’re particularly excited about?

Oh, well, I don’t play favorites. Once we get through that excruciating adjudication process we’ve picked our, I guess this year, 187 favorite.

This is the festival’s 16th year.

What was the first one like?

Starting this festival, I think the two key ingredients for us were youth and ignorance. ... It’s amazing how much we’ve grown, [but] even kind of more refreshing how we’ve stayed true to the roots of this festival. ... We had a musical go to Broadway — “Urinetown,” from ’99. That rocked our world in a lot of great ways, and it could have changed us in a lot of not-so-great ways.

What other successes has the festival had?

We’ve had everything from television shows to movies made from FringeNYC shows. ... But even when shows don’t have a future life, it’s amazing to look back at our press photos from the early years and be like, “Oh my gosh, that’s so-and-so!” ... Many folks started here.

Like who?

Mindy Kaling, someone just told me that she talks in her new book about having started at FringeNYC with her show “Matt & Ben.” Director Leigh Silverman ... she was one of the few female directors on Broadway a couple years ago. We love when they come back, too. [The men] who wrote “Urinetown” did their new musical in last year’s FringeNYC. How flattering is that? We’re still having fun, and that’s the main thing.

Romney campaign needs a new playlist

► Romney may be a Silversun Pickups fan ...

► ... but the feeling isn't mutual, says the band.

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

As a general rule, we try not to mix celebrity gossip with politics here — even we have souls to answer to.

But, unfortunately, it's just that time in the election cycle, so take a walk with us: The Silversun Pickups have sent Mitt Romney a cease-and-desist letter after his campaign played their 2009 hit, "Panic Switch," at events without permission.

"We don't like people going behind our backs, using our music without asking — and we don't like the Romney campaign," Silversun singer Brian Aubert said in a statement. "We're nice, approachable people. We won't bite. Unless you're Mitt Romney!"

A Romney rep told the Los Angeles Times that the song has been taken out of rotation, and that it wasn't "played intentionally." We're inclined to believe them here, considering the song's paranoid, gun-riddled chorus:

*"When you see yourself in a crowded room,
Do your fingers itch, are you*

*pistol-whipped?
Will you step in line or release the glitch?
Can you fall asleep with a panic switch?"*

Not as good as the Reagan campaign mistaking "Born in the USA" as a patriotic anthem, but still, pretty great playlist fail.

Get some chunky glasses, Lady

Lady Gaga has been getting some backlash for stepping out in what appear to be real fur coats recently.

She took to her blog to oddly coo at her fans ("I care deeply about your feelings and views") and offer this defense of her wardrobe: "You see a carcass, I see a museum piece de resistance," she writes.

Lady Gaga, for the last time, weird hair — yours or bunnies' — gives you no artist cred after high school.

Humphries has crafty lawyers

Kris Humphries is engineering a you-hurt-my-feelings lawsuit against former wife Kim Kardashian, and in the process has to serve her current boyfriend, Kanye West, a subpoena.

So how do you corner a guy with an entourage on the payroll? In a stroke of enviable genius, Humphries' lawyer sent the papers over in a Nordstrom box.

If a Cinnabon box lands at the Metro office, we're going to have some very tough decisions to make.

Talking points

Holmes and Cruise set to reunite

Katie Holmes and Tom Cruise will see each other for the first time since Holmes filed for divorce when their daughter, Suri, starts school in New York City after Labor Day, according to Radar Online. "Tom and Katie have been speaking on the telephone regarding Suri, and Katie has been very supportive of Tom wanting to be there when Suri goes to her new school for the first time," a source says. "It's a big moment in Suri's life and Katie wants Tom to be a part of that. Of course, there will be security concerns and Tom doesn't want to disrupt other parents and students at the school with his presence, which means he could very well slip in and out via a back entrance."

Joe Jonas wasn't Swift's inspiration

Fans are speculating which ex-boyfriend Taylor Swift wrote her new single, "We Are Never Ever Getting Back Together," about, but at least ► Joe Jonas claims he's not the guy cited in Swift's latest breakup song.

one is taking himself out of the running. "I can tell you it's not about me," Joe Jonas, who dated Swift in 2008, says during an interview with

Washington, D.C., area radio station 94.7 Fresh FM. "I can say it's not about me because I don't think we ever tried another time."

Blossom recovering after car accident

Former "Blossom" star Mayim Bialik was hospitalized after being involved in a traffic collision with a car full of Chilean tourists in Hollywood Wednesday, according to TMZ. Eyewitnesses say that after the "extremely loud" collision, Bialik was "crying really hard" and there was "blood everywhere." The actress's hand was reportedly wrapped in a towel in an effort to stabilize a wound to her finger. "Her finger was almost completely severed," a source says. "It was just hanging there." Bialik was rushed to a nearby hospital, where the finger was able to be saved. Later that afternoon, she tweeted that she "will keep all my fingers."

Bring it, Broadway!

► This cheerleading musical is perfect for teens ► Catty film title carries over, but acceptance and individuality play a bigger part than a big 'tude

Unlike many movies-made-plays gracing our stages lately, "Bring It On" chooses to adopt the commercial film title without lazily adapting the same plot. Instead, a new story is spun about an overeager high school senior who's spent her "whole life" waiting to take her cheerleading team to nationals. At our viewing, the energetic audience skewed younger than the norm; beside us, a teenager spent two hours literally on the edge of her seat. We thoroughly enjoyed ourselves, but weren't as quite as wowed; however, we can see the musical having a long life playing to this crowd.

Taylor Louderman is sensational as cheerleading captain Campbell. Not only can she carry off a genuine performance that could easily go 2-D, she also has a set of pipes that seems unfazed by the fact that this star spends time dancing and, of course, cheerleading. Ryann Redmond wins the spirit award for earning both empathy and laughs as the requisite dorky misfit. Though other leads don't do much tumbling (the ensemble is stuffed with no-name gymnasts to carry that load), their talent is also apparent. And kudos for a diverse cast all around, despite a strange idea of what passes for "street" these days. We only wish they'd been given meatier conflict and didn't do some of their best work via Skype (the show nods to "modern" technology like texting and Google).

Truly, the shortcomings are the predictable plot and forgettable music. The work may have gotten murky thanks to a mash-up of three musician/lyricists. Notably, Lin-Manuel Miranda ("In the Heights") is up to his usual tricks. He's still a breath of fresh air on Broadway — but as with our "Bring It On" heroine, we can't wait for him to mature and figure out his next move. Maybe we'll just wait for the sequel?

The sick man has a clean bill of health

RE: "THE SICK MAN OF EUROPE — AND US" (METRO, AUG. 16)
"Socialism is failing in Europe" says John Mielach. Symptoms of that failure in Germany include: better employment numbers than ours; government assistance to work-sharing arrangements to minimize the spillover when Wall Street and the City of London almost drove the world economy over the cliff; national health insurance; national student-tuition subsidies, which ensure that German students do not face a mountain of debt when they graduate, and help make university education available for a broader group; and lots more — including government assistance to apprenticeship programs for youngsters who are not college bound and other measures that make German manufacturing a world leader. Maybe we could use a little of this kind of failure.

BRIAN A. JONES, BROOKLYN

The Fourth Estate pleading the Fifth on Assange?

There's too much hypocrisy from the U.S. for Julian Assange to receive democratic justice. You are aware that American journalists don't have freedom of speech either? So future college students: You shouldn't take out a loan for journalism any time soon, because you might have to seek asylum. And a jury of your peers in court will not be democratic if you don't. Only a clandestine justice will be suffice at this juncture. Find democracy quiet for for Julian Assange.

CALVIN DAVIS, PHILADELPHIA

World leaders shouldn't give Iran the time of day

Iran's leaders are defying U.N. resolutions and world opinion by continuing to develop nuclear weapons while issuing frequent threats to destroy Israel.

Tough sanctions and diplomatic isolation of Iran may be the only peaceful ways to stop Iran from becoming a nuclear weapons state.

By attending the Non-Aligned Movement Summit in Tehran on Aug. 26, world leaders and the U.N. Secretary General are sabotaging these peaceful efforts to stop Iran's nuclear weapons program. Any leader who shakes hands with Ahmadinejad is condoning his anti-Semitic attacks on Israel and the Jewish people.

ALBERT LINDER, STAMFORD, CONN.

Don't be chicken; protest correctly

Dan Cathy's beliefs and actions are wrong and inconsistent with American ideals — people should have the right to pursue happiness by any means, including marrying someone of their own sex. However, there is no legal basis by which New Yorkers can evict Chick-fil-A from this city; the company has the right to establish a business here as long as it abides by the laws and regulations of New York. Many people (including myself) may want Chick-fil-A gone, but even this homophobic chicken has the right to cluck wherever it wants. So stop Chick-fil-A the right way: Sign a petition, organize a protest, or boycott the store.

HARRY COOPERMAN, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. If faced with opposition from others, abide by what your inner feelings tell you is the right thing to do. The important thing is not to respond in a manner that is offensive.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Sometimes it's smart to follow an intuition or a hunch, but if your logic and common sense are telling you to do otherwise, follow their lead.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. There is a strong chance that you could place your trust in an acquaintance whom you know from experience isn't too reliable. If havoc results, you'll have only yourself to blame.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Should you come up with a bright idea for an improvement, just be careful that you don't destroy the good that was already there in the process.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Normally you're a disciplined person who tries to be careful about expressing yourself. If this caution is not in effect, you could blurt out something offensive.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. If people you're involved with lack vision and positive perspective, don't let them override you. Go your own way.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. You might find a polite way to terminate a relationship that is of dubious value at best. It's an association you've been trying to unwind for some time.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Unless you take your duties and responsibilities seriously, chances are they'll end up plaguing you well into next week. You can hide, but you can't escape.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Someone who is known to be a gossip might say something nasty and unfounded about a mutual friend. Don't stand idly by — squelch the rumor with alacrity.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Don't be so quick to invite someone home without first checking with the family to see if the welcome mat is out. Someone in the household might need privacy.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. An associate at work might try to take credit for one of your ideas when you're not looking. Be prepared to speak up and let the truth be known the minute you hear about it.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. If you find yourself involved in a joint endeavor that requires more funding than anyone anticipated, don't think you have to stay the course. Pull out as quickly as possible.

Cortland ka-ching: As Jets say goodbye, locals reaped rewards

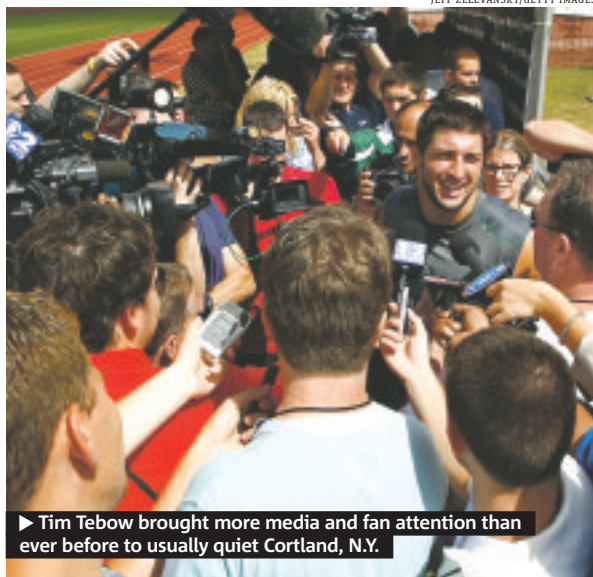

► Tebow, Jets bring in big money for small town in western New York ► Economy happy to receive boost after one year off ► Team brought in $5.8 million in 2010, likely more in 2012

The shrieks of fans screaming for Tim Tebow at Jets training camp the past three weeks was only drowned out by the sound of cash registers in downtown Cortland, N.Y.

He may be a backup on the Jets' roster, but Tebow is undoubtedly first place in the hearts and wallets of local business owners.

The Jets didn't travel to Cortland last year, instead holding training camp at their team facility in northern New Jersey just days after a new labor deal between the league and the union was reached. This year, the Jets returned to tiny Cortland with an instant money maker in Tebow, whose unabashed Christian faith and unique playing style have won him fans the world over.

No place more so than ► Tim Tebow brought more media and fan attention than ever before to usually quiet Cortland, N.Y.

JEFF ZELEVANSKY/GETTY IMAGES

36K With half as many practices, total attendance was down in Cortland, but 36,000 visitors in 2012 set a record on average.

Bernard's Custom Logo & Trophy Source, a downtown business that is decked out in Jets colors with Tebow shirts hanging in the storefront display.

"We've been busy ever since the Jets came to town. The first two years they came here, we got some traffic, but not like this year. When camp opened, that first day, this place was packed immediately after practice ended," said Steve Wineburg, owner of Bernard's Custom Logo & Trophy Source. "It was wall-to-wall people in here, all buying stuff."

Beyond Tebow, the Jets are a winner for the town.

"The economics department at SUNY-Cortland does a detailed study of the economic impact of camp for the local economy. Two years ago, there were 41,000 visitors to camp and it had a $5.8 million impact to the local economy. It will be a while before we know the final numbers from the 2012 camp," said Bob Haight, Executive Director of the Cortland County Chamber of Commerce. "Every story you hear from player and coach interactions with our local community is a positive one. We love having them and it's obvious to us that they love being here."

In the news

GM shocked by Cabrera PED suspension

Giants general manager Brian Sabean said he was caught completely off-guard by Melky Cabrera's suspension for performance-enhancing drugs, while manager Bruce Bochy was forced to tell his team 90 minutes before Wednesday's first pitch. "I was so taken aback. It was deflating," Sabean said. "I was actually in the meeting with Bruce ... and I kind of got emotional." • METRO

In the news

Jacobs on Jets

Brandon Jacobs signed with the 49ers in the offseason, but that's not keeping him from spouting off about the Jets.

The former Giants running back told CBS Sports that the Jets are "a circus," among other things.

"I'm just so tired of reading and hearing everything over there ... and it's mid-August," Jacobs said. "It's like, are you kidding me?"

Giants, Jets meet on field

The Giants are the defending champions, but they're definitely runners-up in the notoriety department, according to the New York back pages.

But to a man, that's fine with them. The main objective heading into Saturday night's game with their co-tenants is to stay healthy and execute, as they'll gladly leave the sideshow antics to their attention-starved brethren.

Expect the Jets to go into Saturday night's preseason game against the Giants wanting to make a point. After a disappointing 8-8 season where they missed the playoffs, the Jets want to show their crosstown rivals and Super Bowl champs that they aren't the team from last season that lost by 15 points in the regular season. • METRO

Justin Tucker may feast on the Jets' woeful offensive line.

3 STORYLINES TO WATCH

► Preseason Week 2: Giants vs. Jets, MetLife Stadium
► When: Saturday, 7 p.m., CBS ► Next: NYG-CHI, NYJ-CAR

1 Can the Jets stop the Giants' pass rush?

A major Achilles' heel for the Jets a season ago was a porous offensive line — somewhat ironic considering the team had three selections from the unit in the Pro Bowl.

Improvement was supposed to come this year, but judging from the Bengals' five sacks last Friday, it hasn't arrived yet. Sparano brought in Dave DeGuglielmo to be his offensive line coach and there's certainly fire in the man players call "Gugs."

"I just want to see them work as a unit. I want to see them move people off the football, and I want to see them pass protect," DeGuglielmo said. "We're not in heavy game planning right now, but its individual competition out there in terms of us against a great defensive line and defensive unit."

2 Will Big Blue get a taste of Tebow?

The Jets have acknowledged they've been working on the vaunted Wildcat package that will focus on backup quarterback Tim Tebow's vast array of skills.

But the Jets have also kept most of the details of the package under wraps — specifically any wrinkles it has and if they'll even unleash it in the preseason.

Saturday could be the perfect time to test the waters, as the Giants are banged up along the defensive line and the Jets should ideally want to get a sample of what works and what needs tinkering before the regular season.

3 How much work will the starters get?

Will Tom Coughlin allow the first-teamers more time to jell and form continuity — particularly along the re-worked lines on both sides of the ball? The starting offense in particular only saw 16 snaps last week.

On the Jets' side, Mark Sanchez threw just six passes in two unsuccessful series.

Rex Ryan said he planned to use the first team offense most of the first half. And while the third preseason game is usually the elongated "dress rehearsal" game, quarterback Eli Manning alluded that he'd like to see the offense on the field longer this week. • KRISTIAN DYER AND TONY WILLIAMS
